Kunzman's
INDIANA DAHLIAS

NEW ALBANY, IND.

To Our Customers:

We take this means of thanking you, one and all, for the orders you so kindly sent us last season.

As always, our aim is to please you. Your orders will be filled with the greatest care, generosity and attention, and in top-notch quality only.

To new customers, we wish to say "WELCOME!"

To our old customers, we want to express again our sincere appreciation of your kind favors, and hope that our pleasant relationship may continue for many years to come.

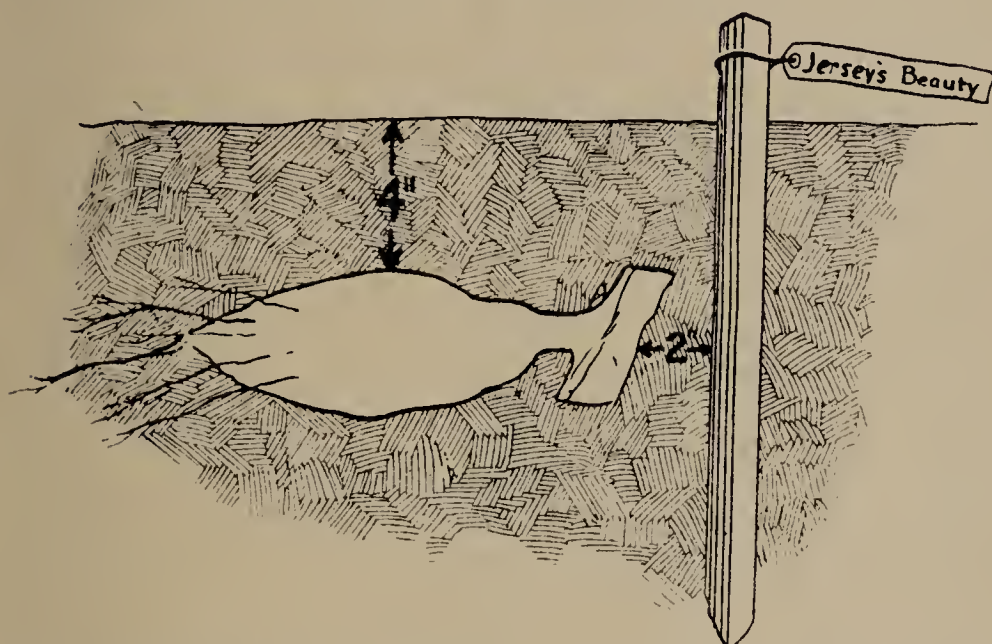

May 1936 bring everything that is good to you and yours.

Very sincerely yours,

KUNZMAN'S, Dahlias

Planting

Now where should we have that Dahlia garden of yours? Not much choice as a rule. You usually have to take the space at hand and make the best of it. Dahlias will do well nearly everywhere they are planted, just so they are not too near a tree, and it is not wise to plant them on the north side of a house. They need plenty of sunshine. Most any neglected corners around one's home, if spaded up, will grow Dahlias. Have bulbs sent at planting time, so as to be sure of good robust stock when you are ready to plant.

Put a small stake, piece of shingle or lath down into the ground at the end of the root about two inches from the eye end. Attach the name of the Dahlia to this small stake. This avoids large, unsightly stakes until the Dahlias need them. The small stake may be taken out and a large one put in its place when the plant starts to grow.

Spade deep or plow the soil 8"; if you can spade it 12" so much the better. Then make the soil very fine and loose. Never work the soil when it is wet. So many of us want to plant our Dahlias too early. Of course, there is a natural inclination to plant them and get them started. However, they should never be planted in this climate before May 10th, sometimes as late as up to June 15th. Plant the roots about 4" deep and about 18" apart. Be sure to lay the roots on their side. Never stand them up.

Cultivation

Like other plants, Dahlias respond better when they are cultivated. Loosen the soil and work it around the Dahlia several inches deep. After they grow to be about 18" high, just loosen the soil around the surface in order that moisture may get to the roots more readily.

After the plants are up, out of the ground, it is a good plan to place about one-half inch of mulch about the base of the plant. This will hold moisture in the soil except in extremely dry weather. Lawn clippings, peat moss and even straw or hay will make a good mulch. If you feel that the soil is weak and lacking in quality, it is a good plan to rake in a little bone meal before the mulch is applied.

Do the watering in the evening, but better still, every time you want to water your Dahlias, use a rake or trowel. Along in the latter part of July or August when the sun gets exceptionally hot, the small feeding roots are near the surface of the soil. This is the time to apply mulch as it will protect these tender roots and preserve the moisture about them.

Don't let the ground get a hard crust. In watering them, don't try and overdo it. Just replace the normal amount of moisture in the ground.

For Larger Blooms

If you leave the Dahlia plant alone, it will form a bushy tangle with a lot of branches and foliage and the blooms will be small and few in number with short stems. This will also shorten the blooming period. Just let the plant grow until the first group of buds form at the top. Leave the center or terminal bud and pinch off all the others.

(a low Bushy Plant)*

If you wish a long, straight stem as well, pinch off the small branches or shoots and leave some of the branches below so that they in turn can bear their flowers.

If you want a low, bushy plant, pinch out the top as soon as there are three or four pairs of leaves there. This will make a spreading plant which will support itself and doesn't need stakes.

Harvesting

Some people seem to think it is quite a trick to keep Dahlias over the winter and yet it is only a case of common sense and ordinary care. Wait until after the frost has nipped the Dahlias and the tops are blackened. Leave them in the soil a few days after that so the strength can go out of the stalks back into the roots. However, don't let them freeze. Cut the stalk off at the ground. Lift the root clumps out with a garden fork. Don't try to pull them out.

Storing

The storing of Dahlias is very important. In fact, I know of some people who refuse to grow them because they say they have no place to store them. That's a poor excuse for storing is another case of common sense and does not involve anything complicated.

Cellar Floor

There are as many different methods recommended by as many different Dahlia experts. Probably each one has his own way. I am going to tell you what I believe is the easiest way.

First, remember Dahlia roots or tubers must not be either too moist or too dry. Keep them away from either extreme. Do not let them get too cold or too warm. Keep the temperature around 40° although it may go as high as 50° or as low as 35°, providing the roots are protected. It is a good thing to keep a thermometer around and keep tab on the temperature.

Put the Dahlias in boxes. Put sand or loose, dry dirt, peat moss or even ashes in the bottom of the box. Don't put too many Dahlia tubers in each box as it makes too heavy a weight for the bottom ones.

Before the clumps are stored away for the winter, attach the name of the Dahlia to each clump with a copper wire run around the neck of one of the tubers, cut the stem off close to the clump, to prevent stem rot.

It is also a good plan to look at the Dahlias once in a while during the winter to see that they are not shriveling up or drying or rotting from excess moisture.

Put the boxes where they cannot possibly get wet. If you put them on the cellar floor, raise them a little in case of rains that might flood the cellar.

When spring comes and the frost is out of the ground, examine the roots. It is a good plan to moisten them before you are ready to divide and plant them. The moisture will make the eyes sprout. In a good many cases people find their roots have sprouted already. If they have, cut the eyes back to the first joint so that they will not break off so easily. Be very careful of the eyes on Dahlia tubers. They are just as important for their growing as our eyes are for seeing.

Cut with sharp knife on dotted line.

A little before time to plant, divide the roots, cutting them so that each tuber or root has an eye. The roots grow around the central stem and the eyes are close to this. The tuber (or root) simply supplies the food and furnishes root growth for the eye or bud to use.

Pack your separate divisions carefully in sand or peat moss until you are ready to plant them.

Dahlia Do's and Dont's

DON'T

- Plant in dense shade.
- Plant too close to trees or buildings.
- Plant before frost is out of the ground.
- Let more than one shoot grow from the tuber.
- Pull up the clump at digging time.
- Divide the clump until the eyes begin to sprout.
- Expect a $5.00 bloom from a 25-cent tuber.
- Let the tubers dry out and shrivel up over the winter.

DO

- Cultivate.
- Prevent insects with good insecticide (Black Leaf 40 or other mixtures).
- Clean up the garden in the fall. Burn the rubbish. This will destroy all grubs and cut worms.
- Cut off a portion of the stem with the tuber when you divide.
- Examine the roots during the winter.
- Help your Dahlias and they will help themselves.

Fairy Lillies

Beautiful, dwarf, tender bulbous plants, very effective for massing in the border. Flowers profusely during the entire summer. Also excellent for pot culture. Sold everywhere for 20c each. Our price, 75c per dozen.

Don't leave more than one inch or so of stem on your clumps before staking; sap in the stems you leave on will often cause rot.

For a $5 or more retail order, from the General List, received before February 15th, a root of King of the Blacks, free. Or a root each of Immaculate and Rose Glory, free.

For a $5 or more retail order, from the General List, received before March 15th, a root of Rose Glory or Marmora, free.

For a $5 or more retail order, from the General List, received before April 1st, a root of either Immaculate or Red Splendor, free.

Send your order in on any date whatever before May 1st, leaving selection of varieties to us, and we will send you $2 worth of roots at retail prices, for every $1 sent, guaranteeing them to be nothing but GOOD varieties which will please you.

What A Few of Our Customers Think of Us

These testimonials are entirely unsolicited and are but a few of the many we receive each year.

"Bulbs received; all nice ones. Thank you for the extra." M. P. McK., W. Newton, Mass.

"The dahlias I received from you last year were wonderful." W. J. P., Buffalo, N. Y.

"You have been so very liberal in filling my order. . . . I certainly appreciate your business methods." C. M., Pittsburgh, Pa.

"Plants and blooms from your roots are very fine. Avalon gave better stems than my own stock." W. B. C., Bayonne, N. J. (Wholesale).

"This year I won a blue ribbon and cash prize on Wonder Pink at three Fall Festival and Flower Shows." E. R. M., Higginsville, Mo.

"The roots I got from you last spring were just fine; made such large blooms. Thanks a lot for the extras." G. D., Shawnee, Okla.

"My dahlias were from seven to nine feet tall; I couldn't reach the top to disbud them, though they bloomed on just the same and the blooms were the largest I have ever seen." Mrs. R. L. H., Springville, Tenn.

"I am perfectly satisfied with my dealings with you, and hope to do more business with you next year. Your bulbs are O. K., prices are SURELY O. K. Service could not be better. What more can I say?" A. E. T., Sr., Swansea, Mass.

"The bulbs I bought from you last year did fine and took first prize at our flower show last fall." E. N., Fromberg, Mont.

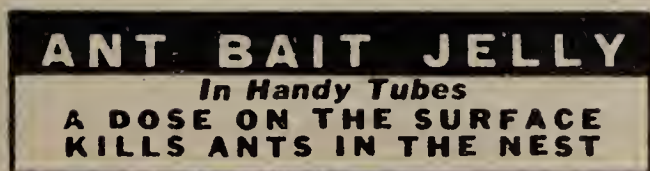

"Our order of Dahlia Clumps arrived safely, in fine condition, today. It's always a great pleasure to do business with an honest and upright firm. Surely more of my business will go to Kunzman's in the future, I assure you, as I am well pleased with my order. Thanking you for promptness, and 'Baker's Dozen' dealing, I beg to remain, Yours for business." M. D. Gdns., Covington, Ga. (W. M. Tucker).

We can send roots any time between January 1st and June 1st, but strongly advise that you have us send them so that they arrive at about the time corn would be planted in your locality.

A 64-page book answers every question regarding buying, planting, growing, spraying and storing of vegetables, flowers and plants of all kinds. This is "Better Gardening." It is profusely illustrated and we will send one, when requested, with a $1.00 (or more) order and 10c for postage and packing.

Bothered with Ants? We have found "Ant Bait" the best we ever saw and it is so easy to use. Tubes, 50c each.

Green Plants

On receipt of Green Plants, remove all wrappings carefully, except the moss around pot soil. Leave this on, plant immediately in well prepared soil, as deep as possible, so that should an insect cut it off, it will come again from below. Press the soil firmly as possible and shade from hot sun (with light cloth or newspapers) during heat of day, for several days.

If you receive plants grown in the open, which will not have the pot soil on, remove the moss, dip roots into a very soft clay mud (like thick soup) and plant very firmly, soaking the soil before filling the hole with dry soil.

NAMES AND ADDRESSES

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some faint smudges and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The left edge of the page shows the binding of the book, and the overall tone is a warm, off-white or light beige.
